FROM THE HEADQUARTERS

SPECIFIC, REPORT/LEGISLATIVE UPDATE - FEB. 1986

Chairman, Legislative Comm.
Don A. Atkins

(to some, but not all) highways will suffer.

The Highway Trust Fund is the only source of significant federal revenue to support construction and maintenance of the highway system. The Highway Trust Fund is financed through the collection of federal excise taxes on motor fuels and special taxes on motor vehicles.

The Highway Trust Fund is an important source of federal revenue and is used to finance highway construction and maintenance projects. The trust fund is funded through a combination of federal excise taxes on motor fuels and special taxes on motor vehicles.

It is important for the Congress to consider the effects of changes to the trust fund program on the highway system.

The limitation on expenditures from the Highway Trust Fund is expected to affect almost all highway programs. However, some programs are exempt from the limitation, including the Highway Trust Fund programs for infrastructure protection, transportation operations assistance, and railroad support. The limitation on expenditures from the Highway Trust Fund is expected to impact the highway system significantly.

If Congress fails to meet the required budget cuts, the Highway Trust Fund will be unable to support the necessary programs. Therefore, it is important for Congress to consider the implications of a reduced budget on the highway system.

The Highway Trust Fund is an important source of federal revenue for highway construction and maintenance. It is important for Congress to consider the impacts of changes to the trust fund program on the highway system.
